THEY SPIN, & CHOP HEADS.
MR. LASKER HAS A STAR.
POUND DROPS, BRITISH SMILE.
FARMERS, NOT GARDENERS.

—By Arthur Brisbane

DR. STERLING and fellow explorers for the Smithsonian Institution have been visiting the Jivaro, strange, undersized South American savages that live near the head waters of the Amazon. Those savages would not understand if you quoted: "When Adam delved and Eve span, who was then the gentleman?" For among Jivaro, women do the delving, digging, all hard labor, while men sit all day and spin cotton used to make their dainty skirts, of which they are very proud.

THEY have one "manly" occupation, head-hunting. The most important Jivaro is he that shows the greatest number of heads chopped from the enemy. One old chief, much honored in the tribe, possesses 60 skulls.

We all say "monstrous" that even the lowest savage should collect heads of other men, of no use to the collector.

To a future generation it will seem equally monstrous that even the lowest savage should collect and accumulate money, of no use to him, and needed by others.

STARS, after their long idleness, are put to work, as Niagara was harnessed after running uselessly for a million years.

First you hear that light from the star Arcturus, which develops only one-billionth of an ampere electrically at the earth's surface, will be amplified and made to start the electrical machinery in the new Chicago exposition.

And, now, that ardent young business man, Albert D. Lasker, who cares no more about a big advertising account than he does about $1,000,000 sends word that next Sunday the New York Central will run from New York to Chicago on a "most accurately conceived time schedule," complete for the Elgin Watch Co. by Professor E. D. Urie, which will check the star Omikron Leonis.

THIS will interest Rufus Daves, head of the Chicago exposition. It only takes the light 40 years to come from his star, Arcturus. Other stars, like Aldebaran, Betelgeuse and the Dog Star itself, may worry Lasker is sure to put them to work somehow.

It would have taken the first railroad built in the United States 62 hours to make the trip that the "Twentieth Century" will now make in 18 hours. That is progress. And by utilizing light rolling stock, and other devices which this writer is permitted to divulge, that trip will be cut to nine hours, and less.

HAVE you noticed the British pound sterling? It "slipped" badly day before yesterday and again yesterday. And the British do not repine. According to some of our wise financiers, Great Britain would like the pound to go lower, for reasons which shall be expounded.

The British have recently established a special emergency fund of 150,000,000 pounds, $750,000,000 at

ROTARY PLANS TO 'POINT' BOY FOR LIFE WORK

Hopes to Arouse Youth's Ambitions In Definite Career

Seeking to interest boys of high school age in selecting their proper vocation in life, members of the Rotary club, at their meeting at the Quaker Tea house Tuesday, arranged plans for interviews between youths and local business and professional men.

Strain Outlines Plans
Walter L. Strain, chairman of the club's committee on boys' guidance, was in charge of the meeting and gave a short talk. He outlined the club's plan to arouse ambitions of youngsters in various types of work and arranged for cooperation of the club with high school officials in the project.

In questionnaires which will be distributed to the youths, they will be asked to check their favorite vocation, the work they wish to follow after their graduation from high school or from college. Every type of vocation will be included in the project.

After boys return their papers to the club, each will be given the name of a leader in the various vocations listed. Interviews will be arranged for the boys with a doctor, lawyer, dentist, newspaperman, engineer, merchant or other professional, industrial or business leader, enabling them to thoroughly get acquainted with the work they plan to pursue.

KILLING FROST DUE IN STATE

Fruits Crops 'On the Spot' Tonight, Forecaster Predicts

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, April 27.—A killing frost, jeopardizing the Ohio fruit crops and early vegetables, will hit the state tonight.

Government Forecaster W. H. Alexander, in his forecast today, said the heavy frosts, striking in central Ohio, will spread southward into West Virginia, and will prove a menace to all crops in Washington, Meigs and Athens counties, Ohio.

H. E. Curry, of the Ohio Farm bureau, predicted the frost would destroy much of the peach, cherry and pear crops, and that cabbage and tomato plants in the southern section of the state would be hard hit.

Alexander said that cloudy skies prevented the killing frost last night. He predicted a low temperature of 36 degrees, with a rising mercury by Thursday.

The temperature fell to one degree below freezing here last night.

"Happy Warrior" Sweeps To Decisive Win In Massachusetts

DAVIS LEADING SMEDLEY BUTLER

More than half of District Vote Gives Senator Commanding Margin

(By Associated Press)
PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—With more than one-third of the count completed, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt led former Governor Alfred E. Smith by only a little more than 2,000 votes in Pennsylvania's presidential preference primary today.

The vote from 3,268 of the state's 8,181 precincts gave Roosevelt 49,760 and Smith 47,647.

Meanwhile Senator James J. Davis, moist Republican who formerly sat in the cabinet at Washington, was smashing the senatorial hopes of Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, fiery marine corps veteran, and outspoken dry, Governor Gifford Pinchot leader of the independent Republican faction, stumped for Butler.

The vote in 4,395 districts out of 8,181 gave:
Davis 524,550.
Butler 275,085.

Predicts 400,000 Victory
Davis was backed by the Vero-Martin state organization, while Butler assailed what he termed the "corrupt machine." Gen. Edward S. Martin said today Davis would win by 400,000.

Included in the Smith-Roosevelt vote were 1,072 of the 1,566 districts in Philadelphia, where Smith's strength was especially concentrated.

Dig Under Landslide for Bodies of Six Comrades

Fifteen other men were injured when they ran to the scene to aid their comrades. The dam is being built across the Kanawha River, near Marmet, and will cost $2,000,000 when completed. Steam shovels and volunteer workers labored many hours to dig out the bodies of the dead and help save the injured.

Deitrich Balks At New Director; Suspend Cagney

(By Associated Press)

HOLLYWOOD, April 27.—Two motion picture studios apparently have determined to have settled, by court action if necessary, whether the studio management rules or accedes to desires of stars and directors.

Marlene Dietrich, blonde German-born star; James Cagney, actor, and Josef Von Sternberg, director who "discovered" Miss Dietrich, are under suspension. Paramount employs Miss Dietrich and the director; Cagney works for Warner Brothers-First National studios.

Von Sternberg Leaves
Von Sternberg left Hollywood for New York last Saturday, declaring he considered the story provided for his next production unsuitable.

Miss Dietrich, siding with the director, refused to report for work yesterday under Richard Wallace, substitute director. Salaries of both were stopped with their suspension.

Cagney was suspended yesterday after he demanded a $2,400 weekly increase in salary. He had been signed under a long term contract at $1,600 weekly.

The actor refused to appear at a premiere showing of his most recent picture, scheduled for tomorrow night. He said he would leave Hollywood soon, and unless his salary demand is heeded, will quit motion pictures and enter Columbia to study medicine.

Studios Silent On Plans
The two studios did not reveal whether they will seek to have the three contracts broken or if they will endeavor to enforce the agreements.

If the contracts are found legal and the studio is given the right to dictate to its artists and should the artists refuse to appear, they would be barred from other studios, under an agreement of leading producers of the film colony.

PROSECUTION HITS MASSIE'S INSANITY PLEA

75-Yr.-Old Darrow to present Three-Hour Closing Argument Today

(By Associated Press)

HONOLULU, April 27.—Clarence Darrow, astute criminal attorney, today faced his final attempt to clear four Americans in a murder trial which brought the 75-year-old legal veteran out of retirement.

He was to present a three-hour closing argument before a racially mixed jury which is trying Mrs. Granville Fortescue, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, her son-in-law, and two navy enlisted men for the lynching of Joseph Kahahawai. The Hawaiian allegedly had confessed participation in a criminal attack upon Mrs. Thalia Massie, the naval officer's wife.

Hope to Finish Soon
Although the prosecution was allotted a period following Darrow's address, attorneys for both sides were hopeful the case would be in the hands of the jury before adjournment. The instructions of Judge Charles S. Davis remaining to be given after the closing arguments.

Darrow was expected to plead not only the defense contention that Lieutenant Massie was momentarily insane when he held the pistol that killed Kahahawai, but also the "unwritten law."

The insanity plea presumably had a joint coming at the hands of Judge Davis in the instructions. This was foreshadowed by a remark of Barry S. Ulrich, associate prosecutor, in his address to the jury yesterday.

Ulrich told the jurors Judge Davis would instruct that the insanity claim was not sufficient to clear Massie if it merely showed Massie to be mentally deranged the

REPORTER FOR WEEKLY PAPER IS SHOT DOWN

Harry Bouklis, Wounded, Hides In Back of Porch Chair

VICTIM FIGURED IN MAYOR FIGHT

Several Arrests In Liquor Law Cases Also Filed Against Him

(By Associated Press)

CANTON, O., April 27.—Harry Bouklis, a reporter for the Ohio Examiner, a weekly newspaper published by Grover Fleming, was shot and seriously wounded in front of his home here early today. Two men, who lay in wait for him, opened fire with a shot gun and automatic pistols.

Hexamer Investigates
Police Chief Earl W. Hexamer, whose administration of the police department has been attacked by the Examiner numerous times, took personal charge of the investigation. He said his men were tracing an automobile said to have been used by the gunmen to flee from the scene.

Bouklis first came into the lime light in 1923 when he appeared before Governor Vic Donahey as a chief witness in the hearing which resulted in the ousting of C. C. Curtis, as mayor of Canton. Curtis now is mayor of the city, having been elected at the last election.

Bouklis later testified against E. E. Curtis, former safety director under his mayor-brother, who was convicted of accepting a bribe. Bouklis himself was convicted of perjury and served a sentence in Ohio penitentiary on the charge.

Several arrests in liquor law cases are listed against Bouklis, and at present time one such case is pending against him in Tuscarawas county. Members of the Canton police department trailed him into that county and reported he was arrested while operating a still.

Bouklis pleaded "not guilty" and claimed he had been "framed" by the Canton police. This case is scheduled to come to trial in New Philadelphia early next month.

take away a slice of what little profit remains for the agriculturalist would there not be a terrible outcry, particularly in Michigan? Is that detail accounted for, Mr. Ford? Or doesn't it matter?

What Others Say

MR. DAWES' PEANUT STAND

Because he has a knack of phrasing things vividly, Charles G. Dawes succeeds in driving home a good many ideas that more precise speakers fail to impress on their hearers. When he termed the New York stock exchange a "peanut stand" in comparison with the great business structure of the country the Reconstruction corporation head emphasized a point that has been overlooked. Mr. Dawes exaggerated, to be sure, but his idea is valid and profound.

Since many years ago the security markets have been regarded as an index of public sentiment, and particularly business sentiment. Yet in every period of extreme prosperity or extreme depression the levels of security prices have been an exaggerated and unreliable measure of the real condition of American business.

Every business enterprise is to some extent speculative. Business men take risks as a part of their business. But their undertakings are built for the most part, on solid foundations of public demand for their goods and of trustworthy skill put into the product, whose business sometimes languish, but the elements of success are there. And the fact that they continue to operate, even at a loss, indicates that the management of such firms is fundamentally optimistic.

Careening up and down the scale of prices, equity shares serve a theoretical and actually useful purpose in providing a ready market for capital, allowing it to flow into channels of the greatest need. But because of the extreme mobility of that capital it lends itself to undue enthusiasm and gloom.

Stock markets we must have. They are an important part of our business mechanism. But we would do well to remember, Mr. Dawes' advice and refuse to regard security prices as the true index of the future prospects of American business.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

NO DETAILS

It never can be charged against Henry Ford that he gave up advanced thinking. One of his ideas made him millions of dollars and gave Americans a low-priced automobile. Another made employees in his factories the highest paid large group in industry and introduced the nation to the idea that the short road to prosperity is high wages. And Henry Ford is still thinking.

He called at the White House last Tuesday to explain his plan of combining farming and industry to President Hoover. Roughly, it includes saving factory workers $300 a year by enabling them to spend part of their time in small-scale scientific farming. Instead of waiting for a sufficient number of workers to go back to the farm, Mr. Ford proposes bringing the farm to the workers.

The plan resembles the various proposals for community gardens, with the important difference that community gardens are maintained for unemployed instead of employed workers. It is a scheme to help employment; not a scheme to help unemployment. As is customary with Mr. Ford's ideas it is a bit advanced for current thinking, which is occupied completely right now with the problem of taking care of the unemployed.

In its first publication, unfortunately, it is accompanied by no details. For instance, it would be interesting to know in what way farmers would be provided for if any considerable number of Michigan factory workers became self-sustaining during the summer months. Farm relief at the present time is the fourth largest item of federal expenditure. If industrialists were to enable their workers to

Removing Tonsils Without Operation

Infected and enlarged tonsils are injurious to the health. If actually diseased they should be removed as they may be responsible for many serious ailments.

It is now possible to have tonsils removed without a cutting operation. The procedure I refer to is used only for the removal of diseased tonsils of a special electrical current until the tonsils are destroyed.

There are many advantages in this form of treatment. The patient can continue work without interruption. The tonsils are removed without shock, pain or danger of hemorrhage, and this treatment will appeal to many who have feared operation.

It is necessary for your physician to decide which treatment is best for you. But please remember that diseased tonsils create a serious condition.

NEW YORK, April 27—What was once the splendor of the New York cabaret has dwindled into dime and two-bit entertainment. Down on the Bowery, one cellar place sought uptown customers with a ten cent floor show. One of the most successful haciendas of ten years ago is a penny dance hall.

Broadway, long a lane of cabarets, now tries to lure the yokels with the catch-penny devices of the street carnival. They range in price from a dime to a quarter. Corner stores that would, in good times, rent for $25,000 a year, are now short leased by side show exhibitors.

There are risque art salons, strong men and sex lecturers who sell tracts. Even a midnight cooch show a stone's throw from Times Square tried to catch late wayfarers for several weeks. Two souvenir shops have a "private room" for pornographic pictures.

The other evening in a five-block walk from the Capitol theater I was solicited twice by a furtive gentleman and an equally furtive lady whose whispered invitations had the innuendos of Paris peep show guides. All I needed to do was to follow them.

After all, such exhibits are only the cabaret and night club in more aggravating form. They were growing dirtier and more brazen each season. A constant impertinence from the time a Tarzan snatched your hat until the waiter sneered at your tip.

Only a nation in the flush of an amazing prosperity and looking for a new thrill, no matter the cost, would have stood for such robbery. Calling customers "Suckers" was of course, a jovial pleasantry of Texas Guinan. But way down deep Tex knew her just was truth.

As the cabarets died in New York, so have they become almost entirely extinct in all world capitals. Berlin, Paris, London, Vienna and, of course, Shanghai, offer the same shuttered bleakness. Easy money may bring them back. But that seems a long way off.

My nocturnal pilgrimages have shrunk to a single night out a year. This usually follows the Dutch Treat Show, and on such excursions I find I am missing little. There used to be excitement. Sometimes plates would fly and fists smash. Now, instead, sneering groups blackening reputations and calling it fun. In less tolerant communities it would bring out the horsewhip and tar.

A perky pint-sized haberdashery off Broadway proclaims: "Our clientele is big shots—we do not cater to mugs."

Theatrical press agents are cashing in on their intimate knowledge of the theater by writing plays themselves. Dorfman is the latest exploiter to turn out a piece featuring Donald Meek.

In one of those highly sanitized restaurants today I could not help but recall the lone free lunch fork that rested in the glass of cold and murky water.

Yet the free lunch, like so many passing institutions, savours a mawkish sentimentality. In the see-saw of youth they seemed convivial feasts—a vicarious picnic among repressed and seldom ate at home. Not long ago I saw one displayed by a lawless vintner in the Forties and it seemed about as appetizing as a will barrel.

It was interesting recently to watch Cobb, who knows the Indian language, and Helen Menken, whose parents were deaf mutes, talk in the silent fashion at their first meeting. Most mute symbols came from the Indians.

What Has Gone Before:

Lily Lou Lansing, youngest of a large family, all of whom have sacrificed to give her singing lessons, comes to live in Oakland. She boards with her married sister, May, and her husband, Raymond, and works in an office in San Francisco.

On the ferry boat she meets Kentfield Carey Sargent, third son of the famous Sargent family, who follows her to the Pacific coast. The Sargents had a summer camp years ago in Woodlake, where Lily Lou's family live.

Lily Lou becomes interested in young Sargent. Her sister May is furious.

"If she gets boy crazy now, after all we've done for her, I'll never forgive her," she says.

But in the meanwhile, Lily Lou has realized that Ken is interested in someone else—Peggy Sage—a girl from his own circle. Health broken by study and work, Lily Lou goes home to rest. There Ken admits his love for Lily Lou. She returns to her work in San Francisco fearful that her love affair will ruin her career.

Lily Lou is injured and Ken finds that the people she had known, with the butchery in her arms. She'd probably have to board him somewhere, she'd never be able to earn enough to hire a nurse. It had been so easy here, her comfortable room, the devoted nurse, everyone's natural acceptance of her as Madame Lansing.

She thought of Gwin. What would he think of her now? Of her small triumph in Carmen, and two critics writing that her voice gave promise of the musical find of the year.... And now the year was over.

Too Economical

Madame Nahlin came to the room to bid her goodbye, kissed her on both cheeks. Wept.

"I have left all the arranging to Rodney," she said. "He is so much cleverer at business affairs than I."

Rodney, it appeared, was not only clever but economical. There was no Aquitania, first cabin ship, with Lily Lou's stateroom far below.

It was July, and one of the hottest days in the year. The Rochambeau developed engine trouble the last minute and lay at her berth over night. Most of the passengers had been apprised of the delay in advance and did not board the steamer until late at night, but Lily Lou did not know. She arrived on schedule time, spent miserable sticky hours in her tiny cabin below decks. The porthole was open, but no breeze stirred.

The butchery protested, waited at the top of his excellent lungs. When morning came, and the ship was underway with a chill wind blowing from the channel, Lily Lou was worn out, and so was the butchery.

CHAPTER 45

Madame Nahlin's husband turned up. Nahlin had talked about him, dwelling upon his beauty, his wit, his passion for the ladies, with her usual frankness. But she had also talked about his three predecessors with the same gusto and frankness. Lily Lou had relegated them all to a shadowy past. And here he was, in the flesh.

He was quite young, very English. He spoke in a high, affected voice, twirled his fair, waxed moustache. Talked about art, life, philosophy. Lily Lou had the feeling that he was not quite the authority that he made himself out to be. He paid extravagant compliments to his wife, proclaimed himself her slave, her greatest admirer.

Madame Nahlin became another being. She primed, she preened, adopted her grand opera manner.

One night Lily Lou surprised Mr. Rodney Horton-Hale kissing one of the younger maids. There was something furtive and unwholesome about it. It sickened her. And now that she had surprised him in that, he became bolder in his advances towards her.

Ordered Home

Nahlin began to twirl her about. "If you let men alone for the next five years you'll be better off," she said bluntly. "You've had your lesson. For God's sake profit by it!"

Lily Lou was hurt, and she could not help being angry. It certainly wasn't her fault that Nahlin's husband looked at her. She began to treat him with something like rudeness.

Two days later Madame Nahlin said:

"The butchery annoys Rodney. The English are so averse to anything natural, that a baby in the house—"

"Oh!" Lily Lou said, "Oh!"

"So since I have that big class coming up, and won't have any real time to coach you anyway, it seems to me that you might as well go back to New York. There isn't a thing for you at the opera here this summer. Nothing but Americans here in summer anyway. So you go back to New York, and later, when you're a little better prepared, I'll plan something worth while. You know you can trust me for that Lily!"

"Oh—of course!"

But she felt that Nahlin had struck her.

"Go back to Gwin for a while."

"Yes," Lily Lou promised.

Adrift Again

She let them plan. Watched Susanne Coin packing. Realized that she was adrift again. Watched, with a curious, detached interest, as the bonnet wept over the baby.

"He has been like a son to me, Madame. Like my own child. And now you take him to the ocean, the deep ocean, where ships sink, and there are storms. He, that has been raised so safely, away from oceans."

And her own mind went racing ahead, back across the sea, to New York, to face the people she had known, with the butchery in her arms. She'd probably have to board him somewhere, she'd never be able to earn enough to hire a nurse. It had been so easy here, her comfortable room, the devoted nurse, everyone's natural acceptance of her as Madame Lansing.

from the friendly steward, and that night after the butchery was safely asleep she buttoned herself into her heavy coat, and went up to walk the deck.

Something about the limping gait of a small man who paced the deck slowly, ahead of her, arrested her attention. She followed, watching, afraid to believe her eyes. If it only were... but it couldn't be! And yet it was! It was!

Meets a Friend

"Tony!" she cried. "Tony Schiarilli! Whatever are you doing here! Oh, I'm so glad—so awfully glad to see you!"

His lined face lit up. "Lily Lou! It's you!"

"Yes, Oh Tony—Im so GLAD!" She kissed him heartily. She was so glad to see him. But he flushed awkwardly, and seemed embarrassed, so that she wished she hadn't. She thought, "I've been with Nita Nahlin so long I'm beginning to act like her!"

But she clung to his arm. They walked the deck, then found a sheltered corner, and he spread blankets and rolled her up snugly.

"Tell me every single thing that has happened since I left New York!"

He did not have very much news. He had just spent six weeks abroad. Oh, doing nothing particular. Just traveling around, but he had heard that she sang in Paris—

"Yes, the other girl had to break a leg, or an ankle, rather, so that I could get the chance."

"I hear you were a lovely Micaela. In perfect voice."

"Tony, you DIDN'T hear that? Who told you?"

"A man I know. A producer, who may do something for me."

"You're going to have your chance! To—"

Another Dream

"Yes, A fiddle in the orchestra at the Metropolitan to start. After that, concert master, director, composer, and you, Lily Lou, singing in the title role!"

He smiled, and she smiled, a little wistfully.

"I don't think my chance will come that soon."

He laughed. One of his rare hearty laughs. "But you think mine will?"

She squeezed his hand. "I'm sure of it, Tony."

The staunch Rochambeau made her way gallantly, surely over the waves. The wind blew strongly, freshly, from the salty sea.

He began singing softly, beating time gently with his pencil.... "You like it? The aria.... It is from my opera, Balkis. And Lily Lou, one day you will sing it.... yes—one one else. Listen again...."

"Pardon, Madame," the steward said. His white coat was like a signal in the darkness near the boat rail. "The baby, he sings, too. He wants that his mama—"

Poor Tony

Lily Lou sprang to her feet. "Oh! I forgot—"

She ran into the cabin cluttered down the flights and flights of stairs, to the baby.

"Bubben, darling! Did he get forgotten! The poor, precious butchery! Mother's here now darling—don't cry. See! It's mother."

And on the deck Tony Schiarilli stood where she had left him, holding onto the rail.

"My damn lame leg," he told the steward.

"These new mamas are forget sometimes." And then, every inch the competent French steward, he noticed that the lame gentleman was not quite himself.

"The ship, she rock too much, Heh? Eh bien, monsieur—you take my arm!"

Today's Pattern

Simplicity Plus Chic
Pattern 2318

It's nothing at all to make, but most effective when finished. The diagonal closing and the buttons are really only two of the details that make the model smart. The sleeves are just the right length, the skirt pleat in front is just the right width, and for all practical purposes, there are no pleats in back. You'll like it in shantung, linen, pique, seersucker, gingham, dimity, lawn or wash silk—printed or plain.

Pattern 2318 is obtainable only in sizes 14 to 20 and 32 to 44. Size 16 requires 3 yards of 36-inch fabric.

Just An Old English Custom

A. R. Garner may be truly said to carry his responsibilities lightly as he observes an old English custom and carries his bride, the former Miss Marjorie Pretwell, through the door of St. Cuthbert's church, Yorkshire, after the ceremony. However, an old American custom was also observed as the friend of bride and groom bombarded the couple with confetti.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

Now Check Moth Influx

A little preparation now, and next fall there won't be any gnashing of teeth over the havoc wrought by a few moths. Much easier to put up defenses against the intrusion of a moth than to control the insect, yes, even a single one, after the first flutter of wings is seen in trunk or wardrobe.

Absolute cleanliness is the first protection. Clothes, blankets and next woolen or fur article need a thorough cleaning, brushing, airing and sunning before storage. Strong air will ferret out the obnoxious insect if anything can, and thorough brushing (if possible with a vacuum cleaner) will dislodge even the tiny eggs.

A cedar chest that when closed really closes tightly, without any exposed crevice, is a fine storage place. If a cedar-lined closet is available it must be made to fit tightly when closed so that no insect has a crevice too creep in. Also, remember that a crack or crevice permits the odor of the moth balls or cedar to escape thus making the container safer for the moths!

Plenty of naphthalene balls or flakes should be scattered in the trunk, closet or garment bag, and the pockets of clothes well filled with them. This is done after thorough cleansing of the fabric. Then fold or hang in the container, and be sure it's wrapped tightly, well sealed against the escape of the moth-destroying odor. It's this powerful odor that nips the moth larvae, preventing them from developing. The full-grown moth does not eat your fur coat or wool blanket. But the eggs she lays feed on these warm textiles.

Hence the double protection. First, the vigorous brushing and cleansing to remove the invisible eggs. Second, packing in powerful quantities of naphthalene balls that will destroy larvae that may not have been brushed off.

Trays—Great Step-Savers

Deliberately cultivating certain habits can make a world of difference to housekeeping. Hard work alone doesn't make good housekeeping or cheerful housekeepers; and what avails it to the family that the home is spotless, if the homemaker is tired and low-spirited at the end of each day?

Planning definitely to save one's steps helps take the drudgery out of housework. If one has to travel the same ground, back and forth, half a dozen times, then the system isn't quite right. For example, setting a table may run into a respectable mileage if three meals a day are served from a kitchen some distance from the dining room.

Stowing away cleaned silver and china need not involve many trips back and forth. Trays can save footsteps, and an investment in trays of different sizes will pay for itself in labor and good temper—a very large and a medium-sized tray of sturdy but lightweight metal, for carrying dishes back and forth; better-looking trays of metal, wood or china bearing attractive designs for service of drinks, sandwiches and light meals.

Wicker trays, with special compartments to hold tumblers and pitcher firmly and with a place for a plate of sandwiches, make a dainty and easy service of sandwich meals or late supper snacks. These are lightweight, good-looking, and sturdy enough to survive rough treatment outdoors.

A tea-tray on wheels is a great help to those who cook and serve without a maid to assist. If desired, a whole meal can be stacked on upper and lower trays, rolled into the dining place—a room or the porch—and the whole meal served without the hostess rising.

moment the shot was fired. Ulrich also said the judge would rule that the insanity defense, in order to be considered, would have to indicate the naval officer was mentally deranged through every step of the tragedy. Kahahawai was slain early in January.

Neither Judge Davis nor the defense challenged Ulrich's statement.

Mind Went Blank, Claim

In the defense testimony the claim was made Massie's mind went blank when he stood before Kahahawai with a pistol and heard the native confess the attack on Mrs. Massie. The navy officer testified he remembered nothing thereafter until he was taken to the police station, less than two hours later.

Among Ulrich's statements to the jury were: "The alleged fact of the deceased assaulted the wife of one of the defendants furnishes no defense for any of the defendants." "If you accept this insanity plea then you publish to the world that Hawaii is a safe place to commit murder if you have money enough."

"You cannot make Hawaii safe against rape by licensing murder." Unless Judge Davis' instructions alter the situation, the jury may bring in a conviction of second degree murder, as charged; manslaughter, or acquittal. Second degree murder is punishable by 20 years to life imprisonment.

Darrow appeared in good spirits yesterday, shaking hands with Massie, Mrs. Portescue and the other defendants, Albert O. Jones, and E. J. Lord, at the outset of the court session.

TODAY

par. Those that ought to know say the British are using this money to buy American gold dollars. The pound slipping makes that seem probable. When a nation uses its money to buy another kind of money its own money suffers.

Perhaps that buying of dollars means that the British are getting ready to resume paying their debts to the United States when the moratorium ends. If so, three cheers.

WHEN any nation is deeply in debt, it helps government to make its money cheap. France, after the war, owed 400-

000,000,000 francs, eighty billions of dollars, a debt that could never have been paid.

The French deliberately cut 80 per cent from the value of their franc, reducing it to less than 4 cents, and reducing their public debt from $80,000,000,000 to less than $20,000,000,000. England and others that had lent francs, at the odd value, to France, had to take payment at 2 cents on the dollar.

GREAT BRITAIN'S internal debt now amounts to $35,000,000,000, a heavy load. If the value of the pound can be cut in two, and the debt paid with cheaper money, that debt will be reduced to about $17,000,000,000.

Great Britain can reduce the value of her pound by printing plenty of nice bank notes and using them to buy American dollars, which means American gold, and thus two birds will be killed with one stone. That is what some American financiers think is being done.

IT MAY SURPRISE our respectable "gold bugs" to know that yesterday former Senator Owen, who for years was in charge of financial affairs in the Senate, said that going off the gold basis wouldn't make much difference to us, and is an excellent thing for England. Brigham Young, head of the Mormons, not having any currency, issued I. O. U.'s good in all Salt Lake City stores. With those I. O. U.'s, because Brigham Young guaranteed them, Mormons could buy gold dust from miners as easily as they could buy sugar and coffee in stores.

If Brigham Young's I. O. U. was good, Senator Owen thinks Uncle Sam's I. O. U. ought to be good.

HENRY FORD saw President Hoover yesterday, and advocated a plan for combining farming and industry. He says factory workers, raising their own vegetables, could save $500 a year.

They could, but not everybody has Henry Ford's versatility.

Thousands of men born on farms, working all their lives as farmers, do not raise their own vegetables, because they are "farmers," not gardeners. This is an age of specialists. Nevertheless, every worker, that can, should have his plot of ground, chickens and vegetable garden, for the health and education of his children.

THE directors of "big steel" decided yesterday to pass the dividend on common stock. The company has money to pay the dividend but decides not to pay what it hasn't earned.

Those that now hurry to sell their stock will be sorry when business starts again.

RALLY OPENS
STOCK MARKET

Wall Street Relieved Now
That Steel Dividend
Is Out of Way

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, April 27.—The stock market rallied rather briskly for a time in the early trading today. Wall street seemed relieved to have the quarterly earnings statement and common dividend omission of U. S. Steel out of the way. The omission had been widely expected, and the large deficit apparently was no worse than looked for.

U. S. Steel common fluctuated narrowly during the first half hour, getting up 3-8 of a point to 29 1-4, then slipping back. The preferred rose fractionally. A number of issues rose a point or more, including American Can, American Telephone, American Tobacco "B", Standard of N. J., Santa Fe, Union Pacific, North American, Consolidated Gas and others. Trading was in small volume, however.

SMITH BOWS TO
GOV. ROOSEVELT

Loses In Pennsylvania, Wins Decisively In Massachusetts

A victory by Smith in the preferential balloting would be considered a disaster to Roosevelt's presidential aspirations. The governor's supporters hoped for the psychological advantage a victory would bring.

It will be some time before it is definitely known how Pennsylvania's votes will line up for the ballot merely allows the voters to express preference and does not bind the delegates irrevocably. Roosevelt forces claimed 65 votes.

McFadden Lead Grows

A critic of President Hoover, representative Louis T. McFadden, piled up a growing lead over Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor of Pennsylvania, in perhaps the most colorful contest of the campaign.

The goal is the Republican congressional nomination in the 15th district, and with 191 of the 312 districts counted, the totals stood: McFadden 16,043.

Pinchot 12,206.

The lead of Senator Davis over the retired major general of the "Devil Dogs" was of such proportion that he seemed certain to be the man who will fight it out with the Democrats in November.

Philadelphia gave him a 4 to 1 margin and Allegheny county, of which Pittsburgh is the seat, voted for him by more than 2 to 1. Butler's strength in the rural districts seemed insufficient to overcome the margin.

Smith Wins Massachusetts

(By Associated Press)
BOSTON, April 27.—Massachusetts 36 votes in the 1932 Democratic convention today were pledged to Alfred E. Smith.

Repeating his success of 1928, when as the Democratic standard bearer he carried Massachusetts, Smith swept through in yesterday's presidential primary, to a decisive victory over Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt.

A Smith-pledged slate of delegates at large, headed by Gov. Joseph B. Ely and United States Senators David I. Walsh and Marcus A. Coolidge, defeated the Roosevelt slate led by Mayor James M. Curley, by a vote of nearly three to one.

President Hoover received 33 of the 34 votes which Massachusetts will have in the Republican convention. The one Republican not pledged to Hoover was William F. Whiting of Holyoke, intimate friend of the Calvin Coolidge cabinet. He refused to be pledged.

GUNMEN ATTACK
MAN IN CANTON

Harry Bouklias, Wounded,
Hides In Back of Porch Chair

In Canton and other Ohio cities, and while Bouklias was listed as a circulation manager, it is generally believed that he was the Canton reporter for the paper. The Examiner has carried many attacks against the Canton police and underworld characters.

As Bouklias was about to enter his home the two assailants, hiding near his porch, opened fire. Bouklias saved his life by shielding himself with a large porch chair, which protected him against the shot gun slugs.

The shooting of Bouklias came just six years after the slaying of Don R. Mellett, crusading Canton editor, who was assassinated while waging a newspaper war against crime in the "Jungle section" of the city.

Charges Intimidation Effort

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, O., April 27.—Grover W. Fleming, editor and publisher of the Ohio Examiner, declared in a statement here today that the shooting of Harry Bouklias, reporter and circulation manager of his paper at Canton, O., was an "effort to intimidate" his newspaper.

Fleming said: "Harry Bouklias came to us as a former bootlegger who had helped federal and state men in an effort to clean up the gangster police force of Canton.

"He bore recommendations of the best elements and has been on the square with the Examiner in all money matters and truthful in all his stories.

"It is the same effort being made by police forces all over Ohio to stop or intimidate the Ohio Examiner. Our work will go on in Canton, Piqua, Sidney, Hamilton and elsewhere."

Fleming said Bouklias was his Canton reporter and circulation man.

Fleming Faces Charges

Fleming now faces three charges of criminal libel and another of issuing alleged fraudulent statements about a national bank. He was recently acquitted of another criminal libel charge by a jury in Columbus municipal court. He is under bonds totaling $11,000 in the four cases.

Two of the libel cases are pending in Shelby county courts and were brought by Chief of Police O'Leary of Sidney, and Ed Miller, superintendent of the Shelby county home. The other libel charge was brought at Piqua, by Charles Sauer a police officer.

At Springfield Fleming was arrested several months ago when federal agents charged his paper had issued misstatements concerning one of the national banks in that city. Since then his trial has been postponed three times and is again set for next Tuesday.

A few years ago, Fleming figured prominently in city politics of Springfield. Some time ago he started publishing the Springfield Examiner, which later was changed to the Ohio Examiner.

2,500 Athletes Will Compete In Drake Relays At Des Moines

THE DAY IN SPORTS

LONDOS TO LOSE TITLE

WRESTLING fans need not be surprised if the claim to the world's championship now made by Jim Londos of Greece passes into other hands in the near future.

Jack Curley, who controls the most imposing wrestling syndicate in the New York metropolitan area and who cuts something of a swath in some other sections, has given the tip that a change may be imminent.

Curley, of course, is the last man in this country who would admit while making a claim to the world's championship that he is not a champion.

Even so, Curley came out with a radio speech the other day in which he proclaimed that this country needs a good Italian for the world's championship. He complained that the Greeks have not become sufficiently lathered, as the saying goes, over Londos, just as the Germans were not properly elated over Dick Shikat.

Coming as it did after the first known tiff between Curley and Londos, the remark was considered significant. The tiff, incidentally, grew out of Londos' refusal to meet Shikat as Curley had proposed. Curley was plainly peeved over this refusal.

So far there has been no indication as to which of the many Italian heavyweights may be in line for the title claims made by Londos.

Meantime the wrestling championship argument is no nearer an end than it was one year ago. There are almost as many claimants as there are states in the union, and each of the claimants is willing to prove (on paper) the virtue of his claim.

There's Pesek, for one, and Lewis for another. There's DeGlane who claims the title on a foul (he says Lewis hit him). Sherrv admits he is at least ought to be the champion because he beats everybody he meets and none of the "champions" will give him a match. Shikat is in the same fix. Lots of wrestling fans think Steinke could beat any two championship claimants within 47 minutes.

THE CHICAGO Cubs claim to have the youngest ball club in the majors, not counting the pitching staff.

The average age of the present Cubs' team, excluding pitchers, is slightly more than 26. The two oldest players in the regular lineup are Kiki Cuyler, center fielder, and Charley Grimm, first baseman, each 33. The youngest are Hack and Herman, rookie infielders, each 22.

Strangely enough Cuyler is the oldest regular outfielder in the National League in point of service. Cuyler came up in 1924. None of the other regular outfielders in the league go back beyond 1925. Cuyler has put in nine full seasons with the Cubs and four with the Cubs, and he still seems good for a long stretch.

The Cubs' lineup and age of each player follow:

1 b.—Grimm, 33
2 b.—Herman, 22
3 b.—Hack, 22
ss.—Jurgas, 24, and English, 25
lf.—Gudat, 27
cf.—Cuyler, 33
rf.—Barton, 24
c.—Hensley, 25, and Hartnett, 32
Pitching staff: Taylor, Seattle rookie; slated to step in for Grimm's place when the veteran slows up; the Cubs will have the youngest outfield by several years in the majors. English, although he has been a regular for five years, is only 25. With Taylor, Herman, English and Hack playing regularly, the average age of the Cubs' infield would be slightly over 23.

The Cubs' pitching staff, however, is not so young with the average age past 30. Their ages follow:

Grimes, 39
Smith, 34
Root, 33
Bush, 30
Malone, 30
Baecht, 25
Warneke, 23

Olympic Stars Enter Classic; Two Meets Scheduled in Salem

With the attentions of Northern Ohio fans riveted on the third annual Salem High night relay carnival at Reilly athletic stadium Friday, interest of Uncle Sam's sporting addicts Saturday turns to the Drake relays at Des Moines, Ia., where the usual quota of 2,500 athletes of all classes and ages will compete.

Another major interscholastic classic will be the Tri-County Association track and field competition at Reilly stadium Saturday. It is the first meet held by the newly organized district unit.

37 Events Listed

With a policy of abandonment or retrenchment in force in most of the country's major carnivals, Drake officials have refused to heed the depression and have gone ahead to improve the 23rd annual games in quality as well as quantity.

A gratifying response in the list of entries has come. All sections of the country will be represented. All of the Big Six and Missouri Valley conference institutions are entered. From the southwest will come Arizona, Texas and Abilene Christian, Notre Dame, Marquette, Michigan State, Utah and a host of other institutions have indicated they will be represented.

A total of 37 events are included on the program. Most of the grade school, high school and college finals will be run Friday with the university teams scheduled to take the spotlight Saturday. University preliminaries will be held Friday in all except the medley relay which will occur during the first day's proceedings.

GOLFERS CLASH ON CINCINNATI COURSE JUNE 6

Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky Contestants Meet In 36-Hole Medal Play

CINCINNATI, April 27.—Golfers of Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky will start their quest of honors in the national open here June 6.

36-Hole Medal Play

On that day, rain or shine, they will meet in 36 hole medal play on the course of the Hyde Park Golf and Country Club here. The high two, perhaps three, will be certified for entry in the national event at Flushing, L. I. June 23-25.

Club officials expect at least 85 golfers. Entries will close in the offices of the United States Golf association in New York, May 17. The number of qualifiers from each of the district trials will be determined that day. Play in the national open will be confined to 150 golfers with the first 30 in last year's play exempt from participation in district trials.

The Hyde Park course has undergone much revamping through the winter in preparation for the event. It now is a 6,293 yard course, with a par 71, 36 out and 35 in.

Opens Golf Season

That event opens the championship season in Cincinnati. Next in importance is the Queen City open, on Sept. 9-10, replacing the Cincinnati open of other years. Played under U. S. G. A. auspices, the Queen City will offer $7,500 prizes expected to attract most of the leading lights of golfdom.

The scene will be the Kenwood club course, the largest single course in Ohio, having two championship 18's within its limits. That course, too, has been revamped for the season, with the two day's medal play of the Queen City open especially in mind.

FAVOR WALKER OVER LEVINSKY

Kingfish Though, is Confident He Will Win; Hopes To Challenge Sharkey-Schmeling Winner

CHICAGO, April 27.—Mickey Walker will be the favorite when he climbs into the Chicago stadium ring Friday night to meet King Levinsky, but the Kingfish is so confident of victory that he has decided to pass up an offer to box in Australia.

The king wants to be around to challenge the winner of the heavyweight championship battle between Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey next June, and he figures a victory over Walker will qualify him.

Walker and Levinsky were down for last strenuous training maneuvers today. Walker weighed about 171, and Levinsky 194.

Advance ticket sales reached $40,000 today, according to Billy Burke, of the stadium box office force.

My name doesn't matter—
but millions
share my opinion

Even if I told you my name you wouldn't know me. I am just the average American. There are millions like me.

Like most people, I'm not an automobile expert; couldn't take a car apart and put it together again for the life of me—but I know what a car has to have and has to do to make a hit with me. And I'm here to say that I am a dyed-in-the-wool Chrysler fan. I like the distinction and smartness of a Chrysler. I like the snap and dash, the smoothness and silence, the strength and safety of a Chrysler. There's something about a Chrysler that makes a fellow feel alive and up-to-date.

Believe me, when you get into a Chrysler and feel the wonderful results of its patented Floating Powerengine mounting—when you drive a few miles with Chrysler's automatic clutch—stop a few times with Chrysler's hydraulic brakes—you don't need anybody's testimony that Chrysler is the most satisfying car on wheels.

I'm telling all my friends to drive Chryslers. It's the friendly thing to do.

Jailed Judge and Daughter

Judge John H. Harwood, 52, of the North Carolina Superior Court, and his daughter, Lola, 27, are shown before they were sentenced at Raleigh, N. C., to one and two years in prison, respectively. Father and daughter pleaded guilty to complicity in tax thefts. Miss Harwood admitted embezzlement of $4,823 of State funds while employed as a clerk in the Revenue Department, and her father admitted he had falsified State records in an effort to save her from disgrace. The young woman, an honor graduate of North Carolina State College, said she took the money to use in stock speculation.

The story concerns a young French soldier who fights with and kills a German soldier. Tortured with the belief he has committed a murder he resolves to seek out the soldier's family and tell the truth to them. He finds Mrs. Carroll in the role of the young German's sweetheart and when he confesses to her, she begs him not to tell the irate father, played by Barrymore. When Holmes realizes he loves the German girl and she him, the remainder of story concerns the serious dramatic events in which the young lovers smooth out their problems.

COMING ATTRACTIONS show "Beauty and The Boss" at the State Thursday only.

On the stage it was known as "The Church Mouse."

Marion Marsh plays the role of an efficient but unattractive secretary to Warren William for whom she has a deep admiration. But not until she learns all about the Love Methods Of A Modern Girl does she win the eye and the heart of Mr. William. How she accomplishes this end forms the basis of the story.

Charles Butterworth's dry whimsies make a delightful contribution to the general gaiety of the theme. Sex appeal is supplied in large doses by Mary Doran, Lillian Bond, Polly Walters, Yola D'Avril and Barbara Leonard. Others in the cast are David Manners and Frederick Kerr.
